REVIEW PROCESS

PREFERRED CONDITION OF MANUSCRIPTS

ACTA ETHNOGRAPHICA HUNGARICA strives to publish high quality papers. To ensure this goal, we adhere to certain basic principles when reviewing a manuscript. Not fulfilling these principles may lead to desk rejection of a submitted manuscript. All submissions are pre-screened by the editorial board and only papers which fit the aims and scope of the journal are advanced to the anonymous review process.

REVIEW OF MANUSCRIPTS

ACTA ETHNOGRAPHICA HUNGARICA typically applies a single-blind review process, in which the reviewers' identities are hidden from the authors, while the reviewers are aware of the authors' identity. Unbiased peer reviewers are chosen to avoid any conflict of interest.

Decisions are based on the scientific relevance, representativity, originality, and novelty of the addressed questions and achieved results, as well as on the quality, depth, and philological accuracy of the chosen methodology.

Only accepted papers will receive detailed feedback.

Unpublished content is treated with strict confidentiality.
