

INFORMATION FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Acta Orientalia Hung. is a double-blind peer-reviewed journal that provides an international forum for original papers in the field of Oriental studies, including Turkic, Mongolian, Chinese, Japanese, Tibetan, Manchu, Indian, Iranian and Semitic philology, literature, and history. A copy of the Copyright Transfer Statement will be sent to the authors of papers accepted by two reviewers and the board of editors for publication. Manuscripts will be printed only after receiving a signed copy of the statement. Manuscripts should be submitted via the following website:

<https://submit.akademai.com/aorient>

Manuscript form. Manuscripts should be submitted in electronic form only, in both .doc(x) and .pdf formats. Manuscripts should be written in Times New Roman (12 point), preferably in Word for Windows.

Text. The total length of the text (including illustrations, tables, etc.), unless agreed otherwise, should not exceed 35 typewritten pages. The first page should contain the title of the paper, the author's names and affiliations (full postal and e-mail address), an abstract, and keywords.

Language. All papers submitted should be written in idiomatic academic English. If the author is not a native speaker, it is their responsibility to have the accepted paper checked by a native speaker (preferably prior to submission). Papers should follow British spelling and punctuation throughout. In special cases, the journal accepts papers written in German or French, though this should be agreed in advance.

Originality and existing scholarship. Like all scholarly journals, Acta Orientalia Hung. accepts only papers that offer a new and relevant contribution to the respective field, and, more specifically, to the particular academic niche. This originality should be made clear and emphasised both in the abstract and in the paper itself. Authors should aim to make their argument in as clear and professional a fashion as possible; they should also find meaningful ways to engage with existing scholarship. An overview of former research and the main innovation proposed by the author should both be clearly stated in the first part of the paper, if possible, with new results to be found more extensively in the concluding part.

Philology and primary sources. The primary focus of Acta Orientalia Hung. is on topics relating to the philology of pre-modern Asia (from the Near East to Japan), with a particular focus on Central Asia. Papers on modern, non-Asian or non-philological questions may be returned without further explanation. All submitted papers should be based on primary sources written in at least one Oriental language. The introduction of new textual sources and/or the English translation of previously untranslated Oriental texts are highly welcome; however, the translation should always be accompanied by a thorough analysis and contextualisation of the Oriental source in question. In exceptional cases (e.g. the introduction of new archaeological or visual sources, or highly innovative approaches), other topics may also be considered.

Abstract. The submitted manuscripts should contain an abstract of max. 100 words, summarising the conceptual content and the new results of the paper.

Keywords. The authors are kindly asked to add 6 to 8 keywords to their papers.

Figures and tables. Graphs, line drawings, photographs and tables should be numbered in sequence using Arabic numerals, and their precise location should be identified in the text with a reference in brackets: e.g. "... as one can see on Guo Xi's painting (Fig. 7)" or "... (see Table 3)". Please send only high-quality photos and graphs, attaching these files separately. In the case of the online document, the number of colour images is not limited; however, authors are required to pay an addition subvention to have colour images published in the printed version.

Footnotes. All footnotes must be placed on the same page as the text and numbered consecutively.

References within the paper. Within the text, works cited should be listed by author's name and year of publication, e.g. Doerfer and Tezcan (1980), or (Doerfer and Tezcan 1980), or, if page numbers are cited, then: Doerfer and Tezcan (1980: 21–22). In the case of publications from the same year, use letters to distinguish them: Doerfer and Tezcan (1980a, 1980b). If bibliographical items are referred to without any commentary or explanation, they must be placed in brackets in the main text; if the reference is complemented by additional information, it should be placed in the footnote. Between page numbers, always use an 'en dash' – (NOT the shorter hyphen - or the longer 'em dash' —), e.g.: Crowe 1998: 54–57. The same rule applies to dates, e.g. Ferdowsi (c. 940–1020).

References at the end of the paper. Full citation of literature referred to should be given in an alphabetically arranged list at the end of the paper under the heading: References, further subdivided into 'Primary sources' and 'Secondary sources', if necessary. Please use the same character size and line spacing for references as for the text, and use small capitals (small caps) for the surname of the authors. In the references, please use full names of journals and series if they are not to be found in the list of abbreviations on the last pages of Acta Orientalia Hung.

Please write out the author's name (both surname and given name), and do not use dashes for further occurrences. In the case of three authors or editors, place an 'and' only before the last name; in the case of four or more authors or editors, use 'et al.' after the first name. Co-authored items come after single-authored ones, even if their publication date is earlier. All titles that are not in English, German, French or Russian should also appear after the original title, in English and in square brackets, as in the following example:

SUN Weijie 孙伟杰 and GAI Jianmin 盖建民 2015. 'Huangdao shi'er gong yu daojiao guanxi kaolun 黄道十二宫与道教关系考论 [The relationship between the twelve signs of the Zodiac and Daoism].' Zhongguo Zhexue shi 中国哲学史 2015/3: 74–82.

Place Russian titles in normal alphabetical order, first providing a transcription of the name and the original (Cyrillic) name in square brackets, then giving the date and all other information in Cyrillic, as in the following example:

BASILOV, V. N. [БАСИЛОВ, В. Н.] 1986. 'Пережитки шаманства у туркмен гёкленов.' In: Владимир Н. БАСИЛОВ (ред.) Древние обряды верования и культы народов Средней Азии. Москва: Наука, 94–109.

Transcription. The authors should use the transcription internationally accepted in their respective field of studies. Please try to avoid the use of special characters not found in TrueType fonts. Try to avoid or at least reduce the use of non-Latin (Chinese, Arabic, etc.) characters. Use Pinyin transcription in the case of Chinese unless you want to explain a linguistic reconstruction. If you have to use other special symbols, please attach a file containing the fonts (in the case of Chinese, use Unicode, MingLiu).

Proofs. The author will receive the first proof in a .pdf file. Please read and correct it carefully and return it promptly (within one week at the latest) to the copy editor. The corrections should be sent in a separate list with reference to the respective pages and lines.

Access. Authors will gain free access to the electronic version of their paper as well as that of the fascicle of Acta Orientalia Hung. in which it was published.

Reviews. General rules of scholarly publication (see above) should be followed.

Addresses of authors. We publish the mailing addresses of the authors as they are given in the Copyright Transfer Statement. Please provide your e-mail address as well.

Open Access. Authors can use the Optional Open Access publication model for a specific publishing fee. One option is for the author to pay the Article Processing Charge (APC) and have the final full text version of their article published as an Open Access paper. The full text of an Open Access paper is freely accessible through the official website of the journal. These papers are also published in the printed journal. The peer review process and quality requirements are the same for both traditional and Open Access manuscripts. Both newly-accepted manuscripts and previously published papers can be Open Access. The APC of an Open Access article is 495 EUR (including VAT), but can be less. Akadémiai Kiadó offers discounts for Hungarian authors, for institutions of low- and middle-income countries, and for Editorial Board members. Discounts may not be combined. The above fee does not include any normal (excess) page fees and colour charges. By signing the Open Access License Agreement and paying the APC, the author retains ownership and further rights related to the article while ensuring the wide accessibility of the article in the written and electronic media controlled by Akadémiai Kiadó. See https://akademiai.hu/196/journals/for\_authors/optional\_open\_access/ for details.

Should you have any questions, please contact the editors of the journal.
